

data mine and map millions of lightning strikes. This has shown geology influences strike locations and attributes. When various attributes are mapped from databases from Florida, Louisiana, Michigan, New York, North Dakota, and Texas patterns have been identified. Lightning strike density varies spatially, and these variations are somewhat consistent over time.