

Geothermal Energy in India : Past , Present and Future Scenarios

Jayaraju, N

Department of Geology Yogi Vemana University KADAPA- 516003, AP, INDIA

E-mail: nadimikeri@gmail.com

India has huge potential to become a leading contributor in generating eco-friendly and cost effective geothermal power. Around 6.5 per cent of electricity generation in the world could be done with the help of geothermal energy and India could have a bigger role in the coming years in this direction. But the power generation through geothermal resources is still in nascent stages in India. Geological Survey of India has

India has huge potential to become a leading contributor in generating eco-friendly and cost-effective geothermal power. Around 6.5 percent of electricity generation in the world would be done with the help of geothermal in the

